

YOUR BUSINESS AND MASK POLICIES

Store Policy

- Store policy does not make an action legal which is otherwise unlawful.
- Forcing a customer to wear a mask in order to enter your business is illegal.

Store Policy Can't Change Law

There are actions that are illegal. Stealing someone's wallet when they enter the business is a crime. Adding that action to your store policy does not make it legal. Robbing banks is still illegal, even if it is store policy. Assaulting someone is still illegal even if it is store policy. Store policy does not make an action legal which is otherwise unlawful.

No mask/no service is an illegal policy

Forcing a customer to wear a mask to enter your business is illegal for 3 reasons:

- The Public has a right to use your business.
- You must be a Doctor to prescribe Medical advice.
- You must be Law Enforcement to enforce laws.

Mask Mandates

- The Public has a right to use your business.
- You must be a Doctor to prescribe Medical devices (masks).
- You must be Law Enforcement to enforce "laws" or ordinances.

The Law and Discrimination

Federal Civil Rights Law, Title II, requires that as a place of public accommodation, your business provide free and equal access to all services and facilities WITHOUT DISCRIMINATION. State and Federal law prohibits you from preventing entry to the full enjoyment of this business establishment.

These laws protect the public from discrimination. You cannot refuse a person access to your business (trespass) due to their race, sex, nationality, or ethnicity.

You also cannot deny service to someone because they won't follow a specific religious practice.

Superstition

- Does your mask policy cite any scientific evidence?

Is your mask policy just superstition?

If your masking policy was based on science, that policy would certainly cite the evidence of the effectiveness of masking healthy people, in public settings, to prevent the spread of the Sars-Cov2 virus. Absent that evidence, mask policies are nothing more than superstitious religious practices. Does your policy cite evidence, or does it refer to some agency ("order"), that refers to yet another agency recommendation for its authority?

Are you a Doctor?

- It is ILLEGAL for you or another employee to require someone to wear a mask.
- It is ILLEGAL for you or another employee to take someone's temperature.

Are you a Police Officer?

- It is illegal for you or another Employee to block someone's entry to your establishment.
- It is illegal for you or another employee to attempt to enforce local ordinances.

Government

- No Government official has the legal authority to tell you what to wear, what to say, or who to worship even if THEY believe it is in your best interest.

Are your employees Medical Doctors?

It is ILLEGAL for you or another employee to require someone to wear a mask or to take someone's temperature.

Are you or your employees licensed to practice medicine? Face masks are regulated as a medical device in the state of Ohio. Even just recommending that someone wear a medical device (mask) is the unlicensed practice of medicine. According to ORC 4731.41 and 4731.34, this violation carries the penalty of felony of the 5th degree.

Even when a licensed medical Doctor who has examined a person and recommended a medical device, the person still has the right to choose whether to wear that device or not.

Gathering vital statistics such as a patron's temperature without their consent is a violation of the 4th Amendment of the US Constitution which protects a person's right to privacy.

Are your employees Law Enforcement?

United States Federal law protects consumers from discriminatory practices. Title II requires that as a place of public accommodation no person may be prevented entry when this establishment is open to the public.

Unless you are a law enforcement officer, you have no authority to enforce laws or ordinances. ORC 2921.51 carries the penalty of misdemeanor of the 4th degree if you attempt to impersonate a Law Enforcement Officer. You are not legally authorized to write traffic tickets, arrest bank robbers, or enforce health department ordinances, even if it is written into your store policy.

Attempting to prevent someone's entry to this establishment that is a place of public accommodation, or to restrict, detain or confine their movement constitutes Unlawful Restraint under ORC 2905.03, 2917.11, 2927.12.

Neither you nor an employee may prevent the lawful entry of a patron.

Regardless of the mask status, attempting to prevent the entry of a patron to your business establishment is a violation of an implied and irrevocable license that this business has granted to the public.
